

Project ISLaND March Update

Conferences:

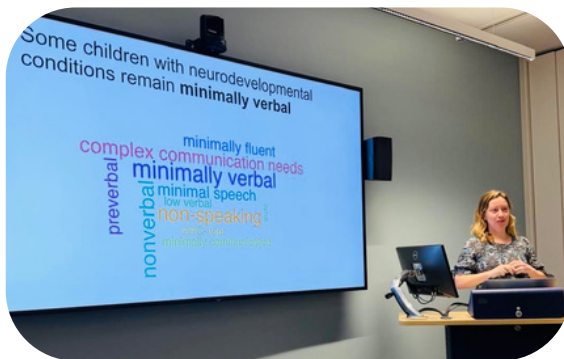

Earlier this month, Jo presented a poster at the Meeting on Language and Autism (MoLA) conference in Atlanta, USA.

She also gave a talk about Project ISLaND at Oxford University:

Student Projects:

On the 4th of March, three of our undergraduate students presented findings from their dissertation projects at a UCL departmental event. Projects included; qualitative research on feeding difficulties and caregivers' emotional experiences, and a quantitative analysis focussed on how parents adjust the complexity of their speech when interacting with minimally verbal children.

Coming up:

We have been writing an article about sibling relationships. Going forward, we would like to involve siblings of minimally verbal children in Project ISLaND research.
